PROBLEM: How do I find out if the library subscribes to a particular journal?

SOLUTION: Use the Serials Solutions “Journals” tool!

Use this tool if:
- You know the name of a journal that contains an article you want, and/or…
- You would like to browse the content of particular issues for a journal.

Minimum requirements to make this work
- The exact name of the journal, magazine, or newspaper.
- HELPFUL: the article title, the article’s author, and the date or volume number of the journal that contains the article

To find a journal to search or browse, do this:
1. Roll your pointer over the JOURNALS tool from our website [http://library.newpaltz.edu], to pull down the menu choices, then
2. Click on the link to “Journals”
3. Type in the title of the magazine, journal or newspaper you are looking for and choose to search “Title begins with,” “Title equals,” or “Title contains all words.”
4. Then, check the dates covered by our subscription and the databases in which we subscribe to the journal (or in the Library Catalog if we have it in print form).
5. Click on the link to the database or Library Catalog to view the volumes and issues of our subscription.
6. If the journal is in a database, clicking on the database link will be usually given you the choice of browsing through the content of the volumes and issues of the journal or searching for an article title or author in all issues of that specific journal. For example:

7. If the journal is part of our print subscriptions, clicking on the “SUNY New Paltz Library Catalog” link will take you to the Library Catalog entry for that journal. Click on the “Is it here?” link under Availability to view the list of dates and locations in the library for all our print subscriptions of that journal.
