THE YEAR IN SUMMARY

The year 2001/02 was both challenging and productive for the Sojourner Truth Library. Provision of key information resources and access services to students and faculty within the constraints of a significantly reduced acquisitions budget was the primary focus for the year. To this end, funds were redirected from other library activities to compensate for the lack of acquisitions funding. Eighty-seven percent (87%) of state funds was devoted to collection development; still, acquisitions expenditures charged to the state account decreased by 7% from the previous year. Fortunately, money from other sources (e.g., contributions from the Friends of the Library, grants, IFR, and the student technology fee) helped the library procure adequate resources to meet curricular needs. Total acquisitions expenditures from all sources amounted to $687,223, down 4.3% from FY 2000/01.

In addition to declining budgets, there was an unusual mobility among the support staff, which resulted in staff shortages in four offices for more than half of the year. However, through cooperation, ingenuity, and extraordinary efforts, the library faculty and staff were able to make great strides towards optimizing access to information resources for our faculty and students. Their major accomplishments include the following:

- Introduced new loan policies and online renewal service to maximize collection use.
- Implemented ILLiad to provide fast, electronic interlibrary loan service for faculty and students.
- Initiated a resource review project to manage double-digit subscription inflation costs.
- Increased full-text access to journal titles through Serials Solutions, which gives users a single list of the library’s entire journal holdings in all formats.
- Analyzed faculty survey results and improved services based on those results.
- Piloted the Library Liaison Program to enhance communication between the library and academic departments.
- Installed and configured a library firewall and system security policy.
- Completed several catalog maintenance projects, including removal of bibliographic and holdings records of discarded items from the massive government document weeding project.
- Improved timely receipt of the New York Times and local newspapers.
- Received grants to conduct a preservation planning survey.
- Hosted a successful week-long series of events to celebrate National Library Week, as well as to publicize new and existing library services to the campus community.
• Fundraising by the Friends of the Sojourner Truth Library since 1996 approached a $100,000 milestone.

I am greatly indebted to the entire staff for their perseverance and hard work in the face of a declining budget and personnel changes. I am also deeply thankful to the College Library Committee, the Steering Committee of the Friends of the Library, Provost David Lavallee, and many faculty members for their strong support during these difficult times.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ACTIVITIES

Resource Development & Management (Appendixes III, IV, V, VI & VIII)

Budget uncertainty hovered over us for most of the year. The initial acquisitions allocation of $312,000 was grossly inadequate to support the curriculum. Thanks to the staunch support of the College Library Committee and the cooperation of the administration, the acquisitions budget was later increased to $512,000, representing a 21% cut from the previous year. In an effort to provide key resources in support of teaching and learning, allocations for supplies, travel and contractual services were reduced to make up part of the shortfall in the acquisitions budget. To this end, 87% of state funds was devoted to collection development, though acquisitions expenditures ($611,331) from state funds were still down 7% from the previous year. We were fortunate that funds from other sources, such as gifts from the Friends of the Library, grants, IFR, and the student technology fee, supplemented our acquisitions program. Consequently, our total acquisitions expenditures ($687,223) showed only a moderate decline (4.3%) from 2000/01.

The reduced acquisitions budget resulted in 1,556 fewer books added to the collection as compared to the previous year. Though we subscribed to 66 fewer journal titles, expenditures for subscriptions increased 6.6% due to double-digit inflation rates. Expenditures for electronic resources and access services decreased slightly.

During the year, a considerable amount of time and effort was expended on making short- and long-range plans to tackle the budget situation. We began by scrutinizing our acquisitions practices. For example, we shifted our major book vendor from Baker & Taylor to the Ingram Book Company and moved several key indexes and abstracts from ProQuest to the EBSCO subscription service. These changes have resulted in deeper discounts and considerable cost savings.

Next, we undertook a review of subscriptions and standing orders in selected disciplines for the purpose of reducing subscription costs as well as for generating funds to be reinvested in new subscriptions in support of new programs. Titles were selected for possible cancellation based on usage, cost, and full-text electronic availability. Liaison librarians worked closely with affected academic departments in making cancellation decisions. Thanks to the cooperation of the faculty, we will be able to cancel 126 subscriptions and standing order titles effective fall 2002. Total savings from these cancellations is approximately $44,000. We plan to continue resource review as an annual program to ensure that our holdings will meet current and future instructional and research needs.

As a partial U.S. document depository library, our government documents collection was inspected in March. While the GPO inspector was pleased with our efforts in promoting the use of government publications, he was critical of the size of our selection. Currently, we receive approximately 10% of the materials published by the GPO. We’ve been asked to increase the percentage to 15% in the coming year.

Collection Use & Information Delivery (Appendixes I & II)

With the exception of an increase (37.5%) in media usage, circulation statistics continued to decline. Checkout transactions were down by 16% and in-house use counts dropped 23%. To maximize the availability of print resources for circulation and to reduce the large number of “long overdue” or lost books, most of which were charged out to faculty, the library instituted new borrowing policies. These include online self-renewal and extension of the loan period of faculty and professional staff to six months. These changes were widely publicized and communicated to faculty and professional staff prior to implementing the new policies in March.

A new interlibrary loan service called ILLiad (Interlibrary Loan internet accessible databases) was implemented in February. With ILLiad, faculty and students can send and track interlibrary loan requests electronically through the web, 24/7, from any location. During the first four months, 521 users (256 undergraduate students, 116 faculty, 98 graduate students, and 41 staff and administrators) requested 1889 items using the new system. This pattern is contrary to that of traditional interlibrary loan, where faculty are the most frequent requestors, followed first by graduate and then by undergraduate students. We have received many positive comments about ILLiad’s improved turn-around time and its ability to deliver requested articles to a requestor’s desktop.

Contrary to the declining trend of collection use, library attendance was up by 34.5% during the year. This dramatic increase could be partially attributed to the relocation of the Tutoring Center to the library and our increased capability to access full-text information through additions of new computers, network printers, and a service called Serials Solutions. As more and more journal literature is included in aggregator databases, identifying the content of those databases has become increasingly complex. Serials Solutions improves this situation by providing users with a customized list of all journal holdings available in our library building or remotely through appropriate aggregator databases.

New electronic databases added this year include ScienceDirect, Wilson Select Plus and Books 24x7. There were 10 trials of new products. The growing demand for electronic resources was striking. EzProxy statistics indicate that the number of databases accessed by users both locally and remotely rose by 97%. Access to the library web page jumped 153%. Our efforts to improve reference desk service yielded results. The number of reference queries increased by 9%, the first increase in recent years. Online reference questions have nearly doubled, as have individualized research consultations for students and faculty.
Increased access to web-based resources and ERes materials has resulted in an escalated demand for printing. Currently, the technology fee covers paper, toners, and printer maintenance. As a result, printing is free in the library and campus labs. Such “free” printing cost $21,000 this year in the library alone. Instead of printing only the needed portion of information, students (and non-affiliated patrons) often print out everything they can find on the web. Judging from the growing stacks of unclaimed printouts, there is a massive amount of waste. A campus-wide policy is needed to address the problem of excessive printing.

Instructional Program (Appendices II & VII)

We have made significant progress in expanding the instructional program. The number of course-related sessions conducted increased from 207 to 215 and the number of students taught rose from 3,452 to 4,416. This growth was attributable to two factors. First, open house sessions for new faculty at the beginning of the fall semester resulted in the scheduling of instruction sessions by nearly every participant. Second, the pilot Library Liaison program (now involving 8 librarians and 21 departments) has promoted a higher level of collaboration with faculty and an overall improvement in communication about library resources and services to academic departments.

With the approval of the General Education III Program by the Faculty in April, there is a campus-wide commitment to information literacy as a core competency that will improve students’ academic success and lifelong learning. Library faculty must work cooperatively with classroom faculty to incorporate information literacy into designated courses in General Education in the coming year. Further expansion of the library instruction program will increase the demand upon instructional librarians for preparation time as well as for additional electronic classroom space.

Outreach to Users

Assessing user needs continued to be our top priority. The results of the 2000 faculty survey were analyzed in the fall. Findings indicate that overall satisfaction rate (95%) with library resources and services is extremely high. This is up considerably from the 1995 faculty survey where 74% of faculty were satisfied with the library. The services that received high marks include the online catalog (Dynix), research databases, reference service, interlibrary loan, and reserves. Major faculty concerns involve the inadequacy of the book and journal collection, the inability to browse current periodicals and the dissatisfaction with the quality of photocopiers and microform equipment.

With regard to collection dissatisfaction, we did spend less on library resources during the report year. However, based on the high level of acquisitions expenditures in the previous five years, we are surprised that more faculty are not recognizing the number and breadth of new materials, both print and electronic, that are coming into the collection. To remedy this situation, liaison librarians will increase contact with their respective academic departments about relevant resources. We have already relocated the New Books section to a more visible area with the aim to raise faculty and student awareness of new library materials. In the spring we hosted a week-long series of events to celebrate National Library Week as well as to publicize library services and resources to the campus community. Creation of a new current periodicals browsing area is planned for fall 2002. Improving microform and photocopying equipment has been our goal for the past two years. During the year, we added one new microform copier and upgraded existing microform equipment with universal carriers. Outsourcing library photocopiers to Copico has been a disappointment. We plan to seek a new vendor after the contract with Copico expires next year.

We continued to explore new ways to serve our off-campus and distance learning students. Last December, the Electronic Information Center (EIC) moved to a smaller location in Middletown. The new site, located adjacent to the Continuing and Professional Education Office, is more physically accessible to students. From there, they can access online resources or can connect with a librarian at the Sojourner Truth Library at the touch of a button using a speed dial telephone service. The installation of the new ILLiad system will further improve document delivery service for those students. The EIC has reinvented itself as an information kiosk and become less of a point-of-need service.

The EIC web site has undergone extensive revision in order to both consolidate services and to enable students to better recognize the EIC’s interconnectedness with the home library. Enhancing our “virtual presence” has helped us better serve our new distance education population aboard. A pilot project in late fall enabled about 40 faculty of the University of New York at Prague, Czech Republic, to access our databases. Students at Prague began accessing our databases in the spring. To instill the required information skills in those students, a trip is planned for the distance learning librarian to teach library instruction onsite next fall.

Technology

The student technology fee continued to contribute significantly to the improvement of library technology. A total of $105,855 was expended this year for the following: 17 PCs for student use, 2 network printers, paper and toners for public printing, new DVD/VCR equipment, a microform copier, a projector for the electronic classroom, electronic resources, implementation of ILLiad, and maintenance agreements for ERes and public use equipment. While the technology fee has helped pay the SUNYConnect database fee in the past, this was the first year that 28% ($29,609) was spent on database subscriptions. Knowing that fiscal constraints will continue for another year, we anticipate the use of an even larger portion of the technology fee to pay for electronic resources next year.

Major computer-related projects accomplished this year include implementing ILLiad, installing and configuring a library firewall, redesigning network topology to work under the firewall, upgrading AIX, Universe and EZProxy software, bringing up a new server, redesigning the online catalog menu, and customizing Z39.5 for more accurate remote searching.

There is a pressing need to upgrade our online catalog (Dynix) from its text-based mode to a web-based catalog, so that links to electronic resources can be embedded in our bibliographic and holdings records. Equally important is the provision of a standardized and easy-to-use interface for both Dynix and a host of research databases available from the library web site. During the year the library faculty discussed these issues extensively. Two vendors were invited for demonstration. We are seriously considering the installation of SFX, a context-sensitive linking software, and MetaLib, an information portal management system, in the coming year. Both products are from ExLibris, the vendor of SUNYConnect’s library management system Aleph.

Personnel (Appendixes XI, XII & XIII)

We welcomed two new reference librarians in the fall. The interlibrary loan librarian was on sabbatical leave for a year. There were many changes among the support staff due to resignations, extended sick leaves, retirement, temporary appointment, and transfers from one unit to another. The sudden death of the temporary interlibrary loan librarian had an adverse impact on the interlibrary loan operation. Several staff members were temporarily reassigned to help out in needed areas. Their cooperation and flexibility made the sustenance of core library services possible.

Fifty-four percent (54%) of the funds allocated to staff training and development was redirected to acquisitions. Consequently, opportunities for staff development were limited. However, librarians and staff were able to participate in some professional meetings and conferences at regional and state levels. Vital library services require well-trained faculty and staff. To ensure that vital expertise is available within our staff to support new or enhanced programs, we must continue to invest in professional development next year.

Physical Facilities

Recarpeting the Lower East Side office was completed. To accommodate the temporary relocation of the Tutoring Center to the library, government documents were moved from the main floor to the ground floor. The Tutoring Center moved into the library in October.

A New Books browsing area was created in response to a perceived lack of new books that was revealed in our recent student and faculty surveys. A new reference desk and new signage were added. With the support of the Klock-Kingston Foundation, a beautiful engraved plaque was installed to accompany the Sojourner Truth mural. These contribute to a user-friendly atmosphere in the library.

Facility projects that have been planned, but not yet implemented, include creating a browsing current periodicals area, upgrading power and cabling infrastructure, and creating a working group to plan for a new library addition.
Gifts & Grants (Appendixes VIII & X)

It was an extremely successful year for the Steering Committee of the Sojourner Truth Library. The committee helped raise a total of $19,275, bringing the total amount of contributions from inception to date to a $100,000 mark. In addition, a marketing plan was developed during the year. With the support of the Provost's office, outstanding graduates from 16 departments were able to participate in the Honor with Books program. A listserv was set up to enhance communication with the Friends members. The Friends’ spring used book sale, which included a collection of specially priced art books, netted more than $2,200. Today, private donation to augment state funding is more important than ever. We are deeply appreciative to the Friends for their contributions and continued support.

The library received a Coordinated Collection Development Grant of $11,822 from the New York State Education Department and a $3,500 contribution from the Klock-Kingston Foundation to install a permanent plaque to accompany the Sojourner Truth mural and to purchase furniture for student use.

The library also received a subsidized grant from the Northeast Document Conservation Center to conduct a preservation planning survey. This grant included a one-day site visit by a preservation consultant and a report of observations with recommendations for the implementation of a systematic preservation program for our paper-based collection.

Professors Linda Greenow and Elisa Davila donated $2,041 to the library from a Title VI Undergraduate Studies and Foreign Languages Grant that they received to acquire materials dealing with Brazil. Vice President Barbara Geider donated $2,388 to the library to acquire audiotapes in memory of her father, Mr. Elihu Morson.

Thanks to the generous support of the New Paltz Alumni Association and Copico Vending Company, March 26, 2002 was designated as a “free copy day.” A total of 11,970 free copies were made by students on that day.
CRITICAL ISSUES

- It was difficult to operate under fiscal constraints this year while facing exorbitant increases of library materials. Another limited acquisitions budget next year means further reduction in our ability to purchase new books, subscriptions, and access services. While we will continue to strive to provide needed resources and services through various means (e.g., journal cancellations, consortial purchases, redirection of funds, use of the technology fee, document delivery, etc.), a prolonged dwindling budget could result in the erosion of quality information resources and services to faculty and students. Restoration of library budget is critical to the continuation of developing sustainable quality resources to support the mission of SUNY New Paltz.

- The perception of “free” printing has generated an enormous amount of waste. We are not alone in this situation. Many other institutions (e.g., SUNY Buffalo State College, Connecticut College, University of California at Davis, University of Maine, etc.) have the same problem and they tackle it by installing print management and control systems. To encourage responsible use of printing resources among our students, SUNY New Paltz should install a print control system that can be used with SUNY cards and vendor debit cards. Students could still make free copies up to a quota, but would have to pay a small per-copy fee after exceeding the quota. Non-affiliated patrons would have to pay for all printing. The money saved could then be expended on new computer equipment or electronic resources to benefit students.

- Space and infrastructure shortages continue to be a significant impediment to providing the kinds of services needed by our faculty and students.

- The new general education program entails a major role for information literacy. Library faculty will have to work in concert with academic departments to develop a program that achieves information literacy goals and adequately assesses student outcomes without overly straining our human resources.

- As assessment has become a campus priority, the library must build on our earlier assessment efforts to better understand and meet user needs.
GOALS

- Create a browsing current periodicals area.
- Install an information portal to provide a standardized user interface to both print and electronic resources.
- Work with classroom faculty to incorporate information literacy into the GE III program.
- Foster a culture of assessment, so the library’s planning and services will focus on supporting user needs.
- Expand the Library Liaison Program to include additional academic departments.
- Explore ways to promote access to library databases by distance education students, particularly those from Prague.
- Encourage professional development among library faculty and staff.
- Complete the cancellation of journal titles from the resource review project and extend the review to additional disciplines.
- Upgrade the ERes system to version 4.
- Increase our collection of U.S. documents to a percentage acceptable to the GPO.
- Begin to develop a long-range preservation program to extend the useful life of our print collection.
