

Challenged Resource Request Form

The materials held in the library's collection are acquired to meet the teaching, research, and learning needs of the college's students and faculty. The library does not endorse or advocate the ideas found in collection materials. The library adheres to the principles of intellectual freedom as defined by the American Library Association's Library Bill of Rights and takes seriously any act of censorship.

To challenge a resource in the library's collection, the Challenged Resource Form must be completed in its entirety and submitted to the Dean of the Library. A written decision will be delivered. It may take longer than six weeks due to current staffing levels.
